

Small and Medium Enterprises in Hungary 1988-2022

Miklós Koren, Bálint Szilágyi, András Vereckei

macromanagers.eu

Acknowledgements

Acknowledgements

Funded by the European Union

European Research Council
Established by the European Commission

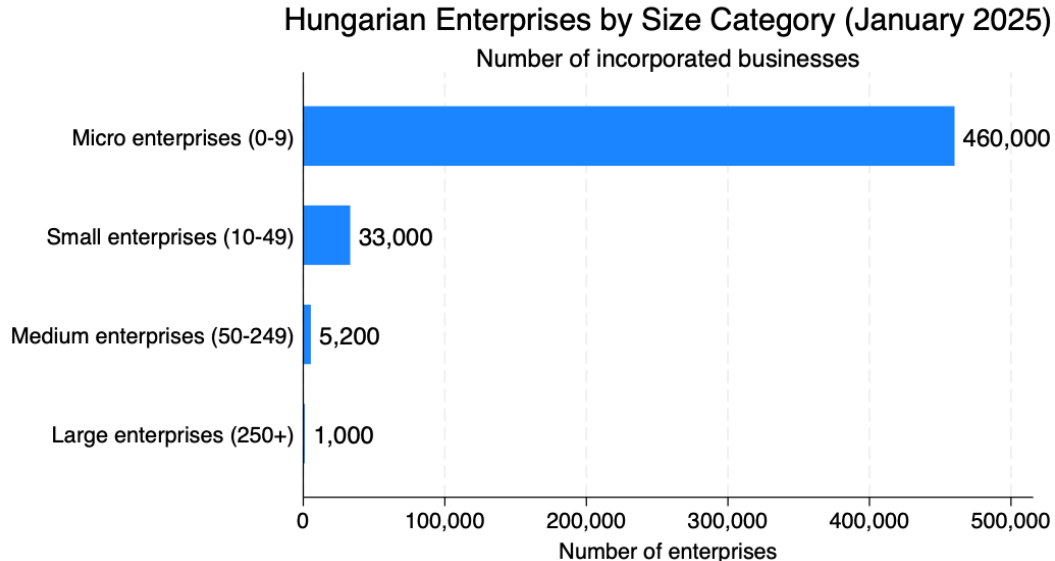

NEMZETI
KUTATÁSI, FEJLESZTÉSI
ÉS INNOVÁCIÓS HIVATAL

This research was funded by the European Research Council (ERC Advanced Grant agreement number 101097789) and by the National Research, Development and Innovation Office (Forefront Research Excellence Program contract number 144193). The views expressed in this project are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the official view of the European Union, the European Research Council, or the National Research, Development and Innovation Office.

Politicians love small businesses

Current snapshot

Size distribution of enterprises

Source: KSH

Politicians love small businesses

In addition, 1.3 million solo entrepreneurs.

SMEs employ two-thirds of all private sector workers.

With an average family size of 2.3, at least 4 million people—a significant portion of Hungary's population—live in households that own a small business.

The emergence of private enterprise in Hungary

1980s: The economy was dominated by approximately 1,000 “corporations” and 4,000 “cooperatives” (large socialist enterprises)

1983 onwards: Between 1,000 and 7,000 GMKs (“economic partnerships”) emerged as a form of spinoff microenterprise

1988: New corporate law introduced, total businesses reached 25,000

1990: Business count increased to 60,000

1992: Following new bankruptcy and corporate laws, total businesses surged to 164,000

Hungary, 1980 (Fortepan / Szalay Zoltán)

Hungary, 1990 (MTI)

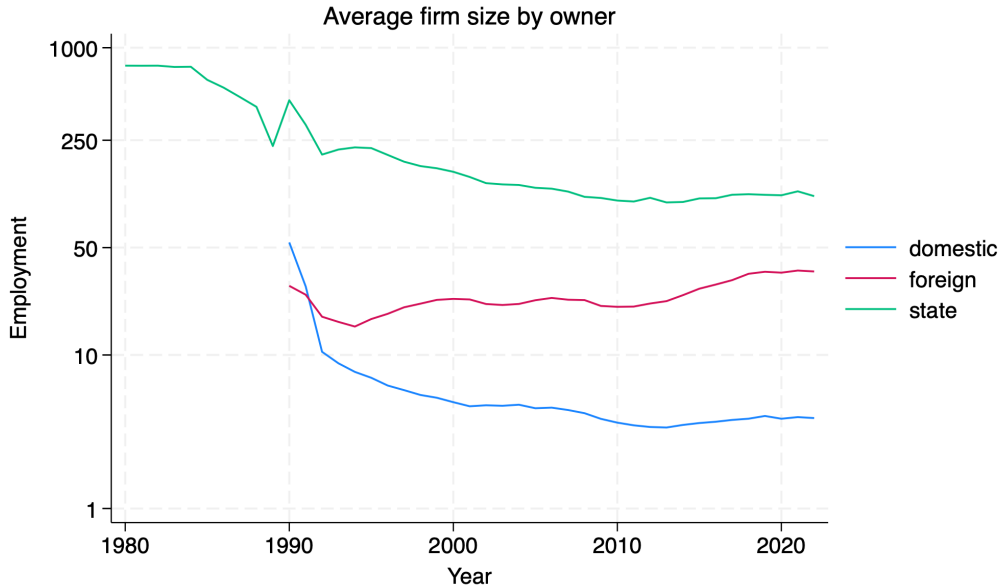

Extreme growth in entrepreneurship

Most dynamism in foreign firms

Domestic firms remain very small

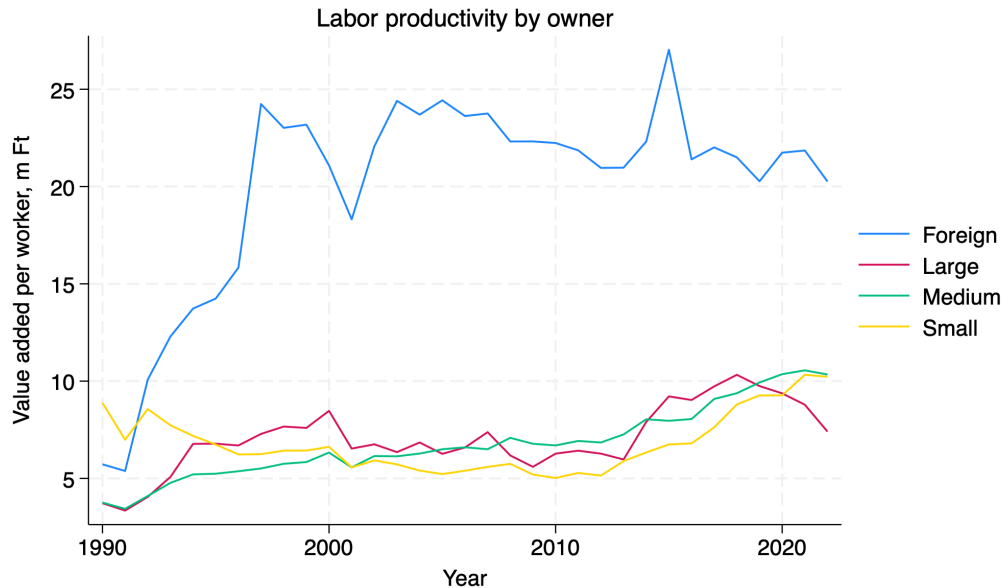

The dual economy

Foreign firms are something else

Large gaps in labor productivity

Widening gap in export share

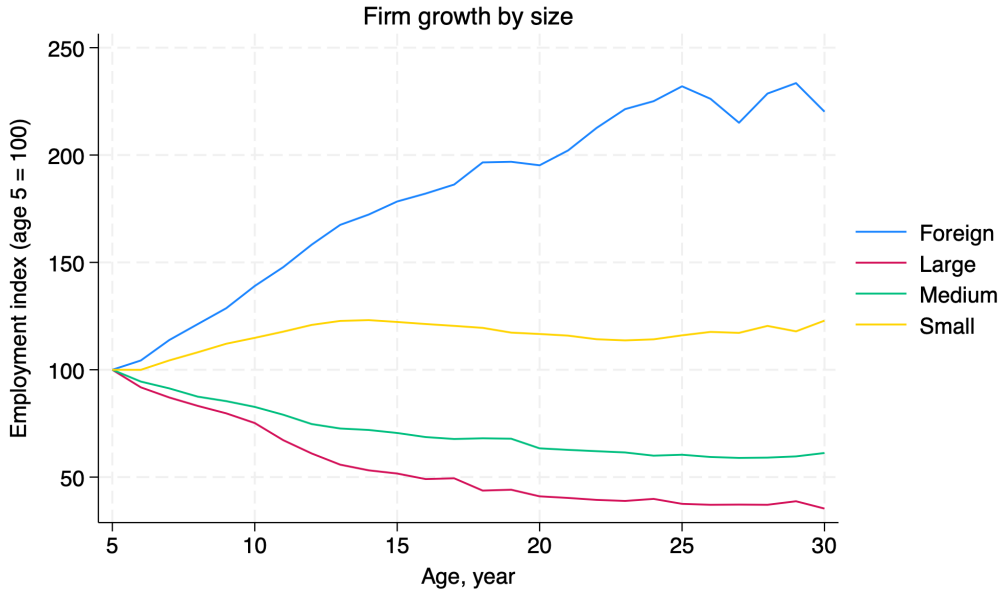

Why don't small firms develop?

Business survival is very similar

But foreign firms grow faster

Ongoing research